Dismissal practices under fire in Waveland

BY TRACI BONNEY
The Waveland Board of Aldermen meeting Tuesday left several audience members disgruntled after Mayor Stella Friolot and Alderman Stan Weidman traded words over the mayor's firing practices. Near the end of the meeting, Weidman questioned Friolot's authority to fire three city employees. For several minutes, he read Section 25 of the Waveland city charter, stopping only when he had arrived at a portion which stated that it is the board's obligation and right to dismiss an employee for misconduct, incompetency or neglect of duty. Weidman said the charter states that in addition to the mayor and board meeting to decide on a termination, the mayor must also give an employee a trial before he is dismissed. He asked if the mayor had done this in the three cases in question.

Friolot answered curtly, "I don't give trials."

Board attorney Lucien Gex told Weidman the charter is very specific in the instances where the board must be involved in an employee's dismissal. He said if the board were to meet every time an employee is fired or laid off, the city would need four full-time aldermen to deal with the matter.

"It would just be totally unworkable," Gex stated. Concerning the mayor giving trials to employees, Gex said that part of Section 25 was written when the mayor was also the city judge. He called that particular provision antiquated.

Money matters heat up Waveland board meeting

BY TRACI BONNEY
Several heated discussions punctuated the Waveland Board of Aldermen meeting Tuesday, many of them connected to financial matters.

The meeting began in a routine manner. After approving the minutes 4-0 and the bills 3-1, with Ward 4 Alderman Stan Weidman voting against, the board gave its attention to Marie Braselman with the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

Braselman said the society, which moved from the civic center two months ago so repairs to the building could be made, will be able to stay in its present location until July 28, but must move elsewhere afterward.

She reminded the board of the society's beneficial work in the community, and asked when the organization will be able to move back into the civic center.

Friolot said recent rains have caused delays in the work, but the work has been started. She assured Braselman that the city will help find a temporary location for the society until the civic center work is complete.

Weidman asked if there was any exterior work to be done.

When told there was, he asked if the city can get on with the interior work.

Friolot pointed out that the city has only two maintenance workers doing the repairs at the civic center, and said they were working as fast as they could.

The board then voted to award bids for the city's FHA sewer and water project, and to authorize a cemetery property boundary survey.

When a question arose about the need for the survey, several aldermen answered, but Alder-

Son of Vietnam conflict fatality works to have father's name put on national memorial

BY TRACI BONNEY
In many ways, a Vietnam war continues today. Veterans battle Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder and other emotional, psychological and physical enemies, while survivors of those who did not return wage war with bureaucracy to have lost loved ones recognized.

James Overstreet of Diamondhead is one of those survivors. His father, Lt. Cmdr. James H. Overstreet of Brooklyn, Howard Potts of Forrest and 31 other crew members were shot down over the Sea of Japan April 15, 1969 while flying a combat support mission for the Navy.

The incident, which was reported in Time, Newsweek and U.S. News and World Report magazines, occurred when the crew's plane was shot down over international waters 90 miles off the coast of North Korea.

According to reports, no survivors were found and only two bodies were recovered. It is also thought that Soviet ships in the vicinity of the crash may have captured any survivors.

Overstreet said a former member of the crew, who escaped death because he left the Navy only

The Hancock County School Board approved a $1.1 million loan Monday from the state for the purpose of securing funds in case of a cash shortfall come the end of the year.

"The state will keep the money in escrow where it will be earning 6.3 percent," Randolph

'Diamondhead Celebrates the Fourth'

Second annual parade rolls today

BY JANET MCQUEEN

The Keeler Air Force Color Guard and Pipe and Drum Corps will lead a 42-unit parade through Diamondhead in the community's patriotic salute to the military on the Fourth of July.

The parade, which will form in the parking lot of the Diamondhead Shopping Center, will roll at 10 a.m., according to Diamondhead Community Association president Eddie Fernandez. The association is sponsor of the event.

From the shopping center, the parade will proceed down

Diamondhead Drive, turning onto Golf Club Drive and disbanding in front of Diamondhead Country Club.

In the tradition of the community's Mardi Gras parades, many festive entries are planned by the various clubs, businesses and organizations participating.

Among those, Fernandez said, will be a decorated boat float, numerous golf carts and mopeds adorned in red, white and blue, miscellaneous floats and marching groups. The public is invited.

Frankiewicz named GRPC interim director

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Coast may have a new and improved Gulf Regional Planning Commission in the near future, according to GRPC interim executive director Vic

Frankiewicz.

He was named interim executive director after the resignation of director Jim Head, who left the commission to assume a position with the Mississippi Regional VIII Housing Authority.

Frankiewicz said Monday that one of the commission's express purposes now, and one of the main reasons he was appointed as interim director, is to see how a regional planning commission can be formed that will be more responsive to local needs.

The Gulf Regional Planning Commission currently serves six counties, three of which are those on the Coast. Local officials have expressed a desire to work with a commission that exclusively serves the Coastal counties.

In response to this, GRPC decided at its June 27 meeting to develop a reorganization proposal for consideration by local governments, and to defer hiring an executive director on a permanent basis until the reorganization issue is settled.

Frankiewicz said GRPC will, if necessary, abolish itself in favor of a reorganized agency.

He commented of the reorganization, "I personally think it's a long-overdue type effort, many years overdue."

Town meeting to address projected gaming changes

A town meeting Wednesday, July 10 at the Hancock County Civic Center at 7 p.m. will focus on projected changes resulting from gambling.

Speaker will be Warren de Brueys, retired executive director of the Metropolitan Crime Commission in New Orleans.

According to the sponsor, the Mississippi Coast Crime Commission, the program "is not intended to generate fear of the unknown, but rather to prudently recognize what some of the problems may be and take steps to minimize trauma through education and prior planning."

The public is invited to attend.

Dismissal

Gex also said he has already written an opinion on the matter of the mayor's firing practices. Weidman requested that he be given a copy, and that the opinion be documented and filed in the official city records.

Weidman continued to contend, as he has in past meetings, that those who were fired deserve to know why. He said even if the charter is antiquated, it must be either enforced or re-written.

When Weidman continued to pursue questions about the firings without moving to go into executive session, even though Frilot had suggested Weidman do so if he wished to discuss the matter, Frilot called for a motion to adjourn the meeting. The motion was made and passed 3-1, with Weidman voting against it.

Before the vote, Weidman asked why Frilot was not allowing the public to speak at the meeting. She answered that the agenda was open to anyone who requested time on it, and also said she had a tight schedule.

After the meeting, several residents and former city employees continued to air their complaints in the city hall parking lot. One former employee, Ed Abson, said he thought the city had thrown away money by firing him.

Abson, the former city animal control officer, said he had attended several costly seminars and training schools in the years before he was fired. He contended that the city lost the money spent on that training when he was dismissed.

He also said he wanted to know why he was fired, especially because not knowing made filing for unemployment compensation more difficult.

Frilot said after the meeting that she had discussed with Abson the reasons for his termination prior to dismissing him. She added that her termination notice, called a "standard letter" by Weidman during the meeting, states that the employee's dismissal is "in the best interests of the City of Waveland."

man Barbara Rappold gave the best reply. She said it was needed "so we don't have a burying on somebody else's property."

The board discussed a resolution supporting the reorganization of the Gulf Regional Planning Commission, but decided not to act on it until board attorney Lucien Gex had reviewed the proposal.

After some discussion, the board approved allowing city employees to request payroll deductions in order to buy memberships in Loiacano's Health Club for $18 a month.

The board also voted to pay an installment of $6,312.07 for sewer pipe work being done in some residential areas. Although the motion passed 4-0, Weidman protested the $300 tap fee residents must pay to connect to the sewer lines, saying the hookups were covered in the city's contract.

Frilot and members of the board pointed out that the city is paying for those connections and must recoup the costs. In addition, Frilot said the tap fee had been agreed on by former Mayor John Longo and the FHA during Longo's administration.

Frilot gave her report, saying that requested ballpark improvements had been completed and a retaining wall in the Idlewood subdivision should be done by the first week in August.

A resolution to ask the county board of supervisors for $1,500 each month for operation of the Waveland Animal Shelter met with opposition from Weidman, who said he thought the $700/month increase strange. He asked if it had anything to do with the fact that the shelter now has three paid employees instead of volunteers.

Frilot said salaries were part of the expense, but so were renovation/repair work done to the shelter and medical supplies.

The motion to request the $1,500/month passed 3-1.

"Do you worry about the high cost of healthcare?"

"Then you need Mobile Medic"

There's a reason thousands of Mississippi families are already members of Mobile Medic: Peace of mind.

The peace of mind that comes from knowing that, for only $42 per year, they're covered in the case of an emergency.

And, with our new expanded coverage, you're also protected in Hinds and Madison Counties. That means you're now covered on the Gulf Coast, in the Hattiesburg area, and in the Jackson area. From the Coast to the Capital.

So, if you're not a member, that's another good reason for you to join.

Emergency care: No out-of-pocket expense to members...$462 to others.

A typical bill for ambulance service and emergency treatment runs around $462.00. That's before you get your bills from the hospital, emergency room, or physician.

Your insurance or Medicare may only cover a small part of the cost. But your membership with Mobile Medic covers the entire uninsured portion of your ambulance bill. You pay absolutely nothing above your membership fee for local ground transportation.

And for an entire year, your membership covers you, your spouse, and all your unmarried children under 21 who live at home.

Mobile Medic is the leading ambulance service for Mississippi.

We handle emergency and non-emergency medical treatment for everyone in our area, including non-members. But, while non-members pay for all treatment, supplies and ambulance service, our members pay no out-of-pocket expense above the annual $42 membership fee for local service. So, if you call us only once in ten years, your membership will have paid for itself. That's why it's smart to join now.

You must respond by July 31st.

Over 15,000 families belong to Mobile Medic. So, we invite you to renew your membership now, or enroll if you're not currently a member.

Complete and return the application below and mail today. For more information, call 868-1126 or 1-800-677-1124.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Today is the big July 4th holiday. There are just numerous events happening around the area for the very long holiday weekend.

The annual Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church Crab Festival gets underway this morning at 11 a.m. and will run through Sunday night.

This year the crab festival will be held on the grounds adjacent to the church, and parishioners have been very busy preparing the site for the event.

Plenty of parking is available and also plenty of very good foods.

Today is the kickoff day for the annual Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo in Gulfport.

The fishing rodeo also runs through Sunday afternoon and includes saltwater and freshwater species.

The annual St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church Fair starts on Friday and will continue to Sunday.

Diamondhead Community will have a big parade marking July 4th today beginning at the shopping area at 10 a.m.

A large number of floats has been entered in this parade to show our patriotism.

There is also a parade this evening down Highway 49 in Gulfport which is scheduled to end up at the fishing rodeo tonight.

A softball tourney and good food in addition to regular fair events are all included in this annual event, which is considered a 'homecoming' for many families of the parish.

St. Rose's fair is across the street from the church on Necaise Avenue in Bay St. Louis.

The annual boat parade is set for Sunday afternoon at Jourdan River Shores off Highway 603, and it is a good time for those participating in the event.

I know there are other activities which folks have plans attending, and I am hoping that each and everyone of you will have a safe and happy July 4th weekend.

Elections are not too far off, and those anticipating to run for office have until July 19 at 5 p.m. to qualify.

This is, of course, unless some elections are changed due to redistricting of senatorial and congressional districts.

The first primaries are in the middle of September instead of the first week in August this year, so it is a later qualifying date for candidates.

During election year for July 4th there is a lot of 'electioneering' going on, and I am sure it will pick up in the weeks to come.

Those who are new to the area and haven't registered yet need to do so before August 16 at 5 p.m. in order to vote in the primary elections on September 17.

FROM THE SENATE

Mississippi roads to economic prosperity

The Surface Transportation Act, or Highway Bill, which passed the Senate recently, is very important to Mississippi. It is not just a matter concerning a bridge here or a road there. If the state is going to advance economically, we must have better roads.

Mississippi is locked into a system of narrow, dangerous and hilly two-lane roads that cause highway fatalities and make accessibility for heavy truck-traffic and industrial development nearly impossible.

The federal highway program, for the last several years, has left Mississippi in the loser's bracket. We have received only 80 cents on every dollar put into the Federal Highway Trust Fund.

This allocation of money is unacceptable and unfair to Mississippi. To combat this, I have been working with a bipartisan group—including Senators John Warner, R-VA; Bob Graham, D-FL; Lloyd Bentsen, D-TX; Dale Bumpers, D-AR; Robert Byrd, D-WV; George Mitchell, D-ME; and Robert Dole, R-KS—to make the formula more beneficial for states in need of better highway systems, such as Mississippi.

Sen. Byrd's amendment to the Highway Bill passed in the Senate by an 89 to 9 vote. It allocates $8.2 billion of the highway fund back to the states.

Half of this money, $4.1 billion, goes to donor states and the other half goes to states with gas tax rates above the national average and with per capita incomes below the national average. Mississippi will receive $1.09 instead of 80 cents on every dollar through this amendment.

Although the amendment helps Mississippi, two problems still arise. One, the money has to be appropriated each year, and two, the funds are phased-in on an annual inclining basis.

Even through the amendment brings more money to Mississippi, it does not fix the allocation of funds and serves more as a supplement than a solution.

In addition, I offered amendment 358 to the Surface Transportation Act, which would have kept the federal share for interstate highway maintenance constant with current law, or 90/10, instead of the proposed 80/20 ratio. And the formula for bridge construction would have remained 80/20, also current law, instead of the proposed 75/25 allocation.

Unfortunately, the amendment was tabled in the Senate by a close 53 to 44 vote, but we will continue to work on the federal-state ratio in the conference committee.

This is one of the most important bills that we will pass in Congress this year for the future of Mississippi, and I will continue to fight for Mississippi to win the money we need and deserve in order to improve accessibility and safety on Mississippi highways.

Raise the flag to remember our freedom

Dear Editor,

Once again we American citizens are free to fly the 'Stars and Stripes' on the 4th of July.

When I see all the upheaval going on in other countries, I am so thankful I and mine were born in the good old U.S.A.

When you raise the flag, it would be nice to remember the words of the late songwriter George M. Cohan:

"You're a grand old flag, a high-waving flag, and forever in peace may you wave.

You're the emblem of the land I love, the home of the true and the brave.

Every heart beats true under red, white and blue, where there's never a boast or a brag.

Should auld acquaintance be forgot, keep your eye on the grand old flag."

Happy 4th of July.

WASHINGTON REPORT

By Senator Thad Cochran

President signs Cochran writing bill

Legislation written by U.S. Senator Thad Cochran established a federal program for improving the quality of student writing and learning, has been signed into law.

President George Bush signed Cochran's "National Writing Project."

"I am delighted that the President has signed this legislation," Cochran said. "It will make available across the nation a program that has been very successful in Mississippi."

The National Writing Project improves the teaching of writing by training teachers with new techniques and modern methods that work.

The new law authorizes $10 million in federal matching funds to support and expand this new teacher training program. Funds are used for teacher-training workshops, research on effective classroom practices and teaching methods, and operational expenses.

Nearly 4,000 teachers in Mississippi have participated in the state's program since 1985. The federal matching funds will allow a greater number of Mississippi teachers to participate in summer workshops, Cochran said.

"Mississippi teachers have told me that the project is making a dramatic difference in the work of both students and teachers," Cochran said. "We've found that students who write better move to a higher level of performance in all areas."

Cochran said the National Writing Project has served as a model for another federal proposal—the "Teacher Academies" program included in the President's America 2000 legislation now before Congress.

Validity of state sheriffs' insurance questioned by AG

The sheriffs of some 59 counties in Mississippi have been left twisting in the wind as to the validity of their general liability insurance coverage under a self-insurance group sponsored by the National Sheriffs' Association.

All the sheriffs are participating in a general liability insurance plan called American Justice Insurance Reciprocal. Both the state Attorney General's office and the State Department of Insurance say AJIR won't meet Mississippi legal requirements.

Here's some background: After an ill-fated attempt by the NSA for several years to sponsor a nationwide police professional liability program for its members called The Star Pool, last year the national sheriffs' organization formed a "risk retention" group called American Justice Insurance Reciprocal.

Because the commercial liability insurance market for law enforcement officers and related public officials virtually dried up in the mid-1980s, Congress in 1986 passed the Risk Retention Act to allow associations to organize under federal guidelines liability insurance groups in which members would retain a portion of the risk.

Once the insurance group was licensed in one state, the federal law required that all states must recognize it. So, when AJIR in 1990 qualified in Indiana, it went on the nationwide insurance playing field for sheriffs in all states to participate.

Evidently, Mississippi sheriffs went into the Indiana-based insurance pool more lustily than most states, to the tune of about $2 million in annual premiums.

But the question occurred to at least one attorney for a Mississippi sheriff to find out if the county could legally spend its funds to participate in a reciprocal such as American Justice. Collette A. Oldmixon, attorney for the Pearl River County Sheriff's Department, asked for an opinion from Atty. Gen. Mike Moore.

In April, Special Asst. Atty. Gen. Alan M. Purdie responded, holding that Section 183 of the state Constitution, barred a county from making appropriations to a private association, such as American Justice.

To participate in American Justice Insurance Reciprocal, he held, the county would periodically be subject to being assessed for an "indefinite sum" to maintain American Justice's surplus. Such agreements are invalid under state law, the AG's opinion held. Worried sheriffs began clamoring for a new opinion from the AG, contending that the agreements with American Justice had been revised to contain a non-accessible provision on their face, thereby meeting the major objection in the first opinion.

But last week Asst. Atty. Gen. Sam Keyes, head of the opinions section of the AG's office maintained, "as far as we are concerned, the original opinion stands."

State Insurance Commissioner George Dale, meantime, has weighed in with his own concerns to sheriffs about American Justice. "They do not have a guaranty fund to protect the insureds if the outfit goes belly up," he charged. Mississippi requires insurance companies to have a guaranty fund to qualify.

Dale's legal counsel, Special Asst. Atty. Gen. Charles Weeks, said if American Justice has removed its assessment provision from its contracts, "it's my opinion they will have to file to (qualify with the state Insurance Department) under Mississippi law. I have not seen anything in writing to that effect."

Weeks said he is telling sheriffs who are insured with American Justice that "they are dealing with it at their own peril."

Shapley Harris, a Jackson-based insurance counsel for three sheriffs—Rankin, Hinds and Simpson—said she believed American Justice could validly cover Mississippi sheriffs. "But they need to come down here and sit down with the AG's office and the Insurance Department and get it straightened out."

One big issue at stake is the whopping difference in cost of liability insurance with American Justice and commercial insurance companies which are now back in the field. American Justice is about $30,000 a year, and commercial companies, $86,000.

Correction: In last week's column, State Auditor candidate Ryan Hood's poll was conducted by Jackson-based pollster Verne Kennedy, not Hickman-Maslin. The error was due to incorrect information from a Hood staffer.

Vietnam

two months before the plane was downed, started the effort to get the crew members' names put on the national Vietnam memorial in 1987. Overstreet became involved in 1989.

Their first step, he said, was to have the crew included on the Navy's battle casualty list. Only names on military casualty lists are put on the memorial.

"We've already presented a pretty good case," said Overstreet, who has written letters to Congress about the matter.

He explained that the process of having someone's name put on the national memorial starts by writing a letter to a senator from the person's home state, who presents the case to the Navy Department. The Navy Department then must decide whether or not to include the person's name on the battle casualty list.

If the name is added to the list, the Navy Department then notifies the Department of Defense, which notifies the National Parks Service, which passes the information on to the Vietnam Memorial Fund.

The case presented by Overstreet and Darryl Widman is 65 pages long and includes crew flight logs and other statistics, Overstreet said.

He listed several reasons they think the crew which included his father should be recognized on the national memorial. These reasons include the crew members' receiving several Vietnam war medals; the flight logs' indications that 90 percent of the crew's missions were in and out of Vietnam; and other incidents with similar circumstances whose casualties were included on the memorial.

Overstreet also cited the inclusion of his father and other crew members on local Vietnam memorials, such as the one in Hattiesburg; and

LT. CMDR. JAMES H. OVERSTREET

State Department documents which show that there was no protection over North Korea when the plane was shot down.

"There are about 58,000 names on the national memorial right now and room for about 300 more," Overstreet added.

"It's taken us a while to get this far, but hopefully we'll be able to get my dad's name and the others on the national memorial."

Local actors in murder mystery

The Eddie May Murder Mystery Dinner Theater is back, and this time the victim, just may be, someone you know.

Local faces added to the cast belong to Nan Ehrbriest of Bay St. Louis, Michelle Dean of Pearllington, Sandy Hodgins of Diamondhead, and Carl Danina of Pass Christian.

The Waveland Resort Inn on Hwy. 90 will present the mystery evening beginning at 6:00 p.m. Friday.

This month's production is the "Wandering Troubadours" which features "a band of high anxiety Shakespearean actors with more than a scent of murder about them."

The Eddie May Murder Mystery Dinner Theater is unique in that the audience is drawn into the action when their powers of deduction are called upon by the cast to help in solving the night's crime.

The evening includes a four-course dinner over a period of 3 hours of plot revelation until the final deserts are served, justly.

Seating is limited, so make you reservations, now by calling 467-9261.

ON PATROL

PRESCRIPTION FRAUD

Investigator Glenn Strong, director of the Hancock County Metropolitan Narcotics Task Force, reported Wednesday that Christopher W. Duncan, 27, of Gulfport, was arrested Tuesday at Ingalls Shipbuilding Company on warrants from the Hancock County Metro Narcotics Task Force.

Strong said Duncan was charged with one count of possession of a controlled substance by fraudulent misrepresentation (prescription fraud), and one count of attempted possession of a controlled substance by misrepresentation.

According to Strong, the substance in question is Xanax, which has among its uses the regulation of moods in people suffering from depression.

Strong said Duncan is in the Hancock County jail under $2,000 bond.

Agent Bill Pepperman is in charge of the investigation.

MALICIOUS MISCHIEF

Investigator David Parker with the Bay St. Louis Police Department reported Tuesday the arrests of two juveniles in connection with the break-in and vandalism of Bay High School.

Parker said Officer Jerry Beaugez apprehended a 13-year-old and a 14-year-old Friday after it was reported that Bay High School had been illegally entered. Paint was found sprayed on walls in hallways and bathrooms, and holes had been punched in some ceiling tiles.

According to Parker, the youths were released to their parents after their case was turned over to Youth Court.

BURGLARY OF A DWELLING

Bay St. Louis Police Investigator David Parker reported Tuesday the Monday morning arrests of two Bay St. Louis men in connection with a reported burglary at 1506 N. Beach Blvd.

Parker said Fred Wayne Tyler of 485 Ruella Apt. 7, and John Wesley Necaise of 7048 Hwy. 90, both 23, were arrested after a witness saw two men leaving the scene of the burglary around 12:53 a.m. Monday.

Officers Joe Kepfer and Kurt Raymond arrested the two men after stopping a 1975 Mustang that fit the description of one seen leaving the scene. Tyler was charged with burglary of a dwelling and driving without a license, and is in the Hancock County jail under a bond of $10,100. Necaise was charged with burglary of a dwelling and is incarcerated under a $10,000 bond.

MISREPRESENTATION FOR ILLEGAL INTERVIEW

Investigator Glenn Strong, director of the Hancock County Metropolitan Narcotics Task Force, reported that Lee Patricia Lamey, 24, of d'Iberville, was arrested on June 29 at approximately 8:02 p.m. in a Bay St. Louis pharmacy for illegally attempting to possess a controlled substance by misrepresentation.

Strong added that Lee is presently being held in the Hancock County Justice Facility on a $1,000 bond but is unable to obtain that bond because she is also being held for the Mississippi Department of Corrections for a probation violation.

Lamey was arrested by Officer Joe Kepfer of the Bay St. Louis Police Department.

Strong stated, "Agent Bill Pepperman of the Waveland Police Department is in charge of the investigation and is being assisted by agent Terry Eley and myself."

to receive our tax dollars from the county."

With the help of district bookkeeper Lynel Necaise, Randolph stated that the district estimated a possible $100,000 need for each of the three months mentioned, to be repaid at 5.2 percent interest.

It was demonstrated on a chalk board how even if the district should use $300,000 they would still be able to pay the money back, and from the interest accumulated on that portion untouched, come out with a profit of $4,000 to $5,000.

Randolph said, "This is an innovative state program passed this year to help the school districts through financial difficulties.

"It is actually a loan on our anticipated tax revenues for the year."

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

Large trout at Half Moon; specks plentiful for waders

It's time to go fishin' y'all. You must know that since there is seven times as much water as there is dry land, you can plainly see that the "big man upstairs" expected man to fish seven times more often than he works.

It is a doggone, crying, lousy, stinking, shame, that bosses think we should work so much of the time.

So, as a world class fisherman (or was it just a smelly decrepit, dedicated fisherman) once said: "Let's take off like a herd of turtles" and go find the fish.

Talked to Tommy Bordages at Bordages' Fish Camp this week. The message from his area is that Half Moon Island is producing big trout on the southwest corner of the island. Favorite food: live shrimp and small live croakers on a sliding sinker with 18-inch leaders.

Be extra careful as there are big-time plenty small red fish in the area. They gotta go back in the water to get "super big" before they hit the cooler.

For you folks who feel the only way to fish is to get in the water with the fish, try going all the way west on South Beach Boulevard to where it ends at Bayou Caddy.

Reports are showing wade fishermen are catching five to 10 specks and a few flounders.

Best time this week has been around six in the evening.

This time seems to be when the tide has a good head of steam and is making the schools of bait fish move out of the bayou and into the east flats.

Look for when there is little or no wind and the water starts to look like a sheet of glass. This is when keeping a sharp lookout will enable you to spot a shrimp, minnow, or bait fish jumping out of the water.

When you see this happen, you can bet a speck or flounder is just waiting for you to cast your bait in his direction. He's hungry.

Best bait: chaireuse beetles in tandem, 12 to 18 inches under a popping cork. Work your cork every three to five seconds. Best depth to wade out seems to be about three to three and a half feet.

Don't forget to wear shoes as there are a lot of nasty things on the bottom that would live to rearrange your feet. But, I guess when oyster shells are on the bottom, trout think they have found the world's greatest cafeteria.

Gotta go quick, past haste, fast-like; a couple of fellers just told me they are catching those big flat fish, two at a time, at a place called Ille La something or another. Gitty up, turtle.

Ladner's offers more than housing for horses

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Beginning at noon Saturday horses from around the county will be putting their best hoof forward.

Kenny Ladner's stables in Lakeshore is hosting an open show for all horses, registered or not.

Ladner's stables has grown in reputation throughout the southern states as a fine facility, hosting American Quarter Horse Association (AQHA) shows twice a year.

The shows, Ladner reports, bring in $30,000-$40,000 in revenues for the county.

fenced fields where the horses are kept), a washing area, a training ring and a feed store for supplies.

The facilities are spacious and clean.

Ladner, a native of the Bayou La Croix area until the need for the creation of the buffer zone and subsequent purchase of his family land by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), has been involved with horses and livestock all of his life.

Ten years ago he moved to his present location on Lower Bay Road and since then has continuously expanded his facilities to accommodate the needs of the local horse owners.

Ladner said he would like to see a rodeo come to the Hancock County facility, but he lacks the bleachers needed for seating the crowds.

"That is all we need because the rodeo people bring their own pens."

"Rodeos attract a lot of people."

"Biloxi has one at the coliseum every year, but I would like to see one brought into our county."

Ladner is holding a trail ride and bar-b-que on Sunday, July 14, from the Lakeshore stables to Bayou LaCroix and invites anyone interested in participating to give him a call (467-7524).

Categories are divided into a pony class and riders' ages, 12-and-under, 13-17, ladies and men.

Competition will be in halter, pleasure classes, English classes and gated (walker) classes along with time events such as barrel turns.

"We have 112 stables, which are filled for three days of the show."

"The people stay at the Waveland Resort Inn, and when it is full, we book them into the Quality Inn at Diamondhead."

Camp Rainbow invites pediatric cancer patients

The American Cancer Society, Mississippi Division Inc. will conduct its 8th annual Camp Rainbow during August.

This special camp for pediatric cancer patients was first conducted in 1984 on the Strong River in Pinola, Miss. Many of these children had never had the opportunity to enjoy the traditional fun of summer camp as most camps do not accept pediatric cancer patients for fear of not being prepared to meet their special needs.

Thirty-eight campers attended this first camp, along with a contingent of volunteers, including medical staff, who saw that there was no disruption of chemotherapy or other treatment necessary for the campers.

The American Cancer Society's objective is to provide a fun-filled four-day camping experience in a loving and caring environment which affords each camper the opportunity to share the good times and camaraderie of camp life with fellow campers.

Camp Rainbow also allows the family a well-deserved rest knowing that their children are in the capable and trusted hand of qualified pediatric doctors and nurses as well as trained camp counselors.

Camp Rainbow offers traditional camp activities such as swimming, tennis, hayrides, horseback riding and arts and crafts. Each year specialized activities have been introduced such as canoeing, sock hops, clown clinics, hot air balloon rides and even Scottish folk dancing taught by the international camp staff.

Plans are underway to expand these activities to make the 1991 Camp Rainbow the most successful year yet.

The camp is funded by contributions made to the Mississippi Division of the American Cancer Society and is free of charge to all participants. Since 1984 over 400 campers have attended Camp Rainbow and at its most recent camp in 1990 more than 70 children attended. This along with the required number of counselors and medical staff saw a record 125 participants.

If you are interested in knowing more about Camp Rainbow, if you know of a child who might like to attend, or if you are interested in supporting Camp Rainbow, call the American Cancer Society, Mississippi Division Inc. at 1-800-ACS-2345 or (601) 362-8874.

How a pro prepares for a bass tournament

Preparing for one of today's major bass tournaments takes more than simply loading your tackle and driving to a lake.

For Larry Nixon, who has won nearly $1 million in bass tournament prize money, getting ready for a tournament takes at least two full days.

"I spend a lot of time thinking about the lake I'll be fishing before I ever start choosing the lures I want to take," explains the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff angler. "I try to learn what the water color is like, as well as the quality of the bass the lake produces."

"These two factors basically determine the size of lures and the fishing techniques I'll use in the tournament. When I know that, I can pack accordingly."

A lake with clear water, for example, generally calls for smaller, lighter lures that will be fished in deeper water. On the other hand, a lake that produces a lot of three-to-five-pound bass will require heavier tackle and larger lures.

The Evinrude pro feels learning the conditions he will be facing also gives him a mental edge on his competition.

"It's always mental boost to go to a lake where you can expect to catch heavy bass," he says, "and as you pack the appropriate big-bass lures you can feel your adrenalin start flowing. You get excited."

"Going to a lake where the fishing is difficult and the bass are small is always tough mentally, but if you know about such conditions in advance, you can plan for them and keep your confidence high. A lot of fishermen don't do this, and because they don't have any confidence, they usually fish poorly."

One of the things Nixon often does when packing for a long tournament in which his fishing techniques may change is to take the hooks off all his crank baits and put the lures in one big plastic bag.

Then, when he gets to the tournament lake and sees the water conditions, he chooses only the lures he wants to use and puts the hooks back on them.

"Bass pros are notorious for taking far too much tackle to a tournament," Nixon continues, "but we do it because we want to be prepared for the different conditions we might encounter."

"I will usually take six worm boxes, three grub boxes, and I don't know how many crank bait boxes to a tournament. I also want to take at least 15 rods and reels."

"I use five different types of rods," says the Evinrude pro, "and I take three of each type. Two will be in the boat with me, while the third is kept as a spare in case I break one."

One thing Nixon has realized in the 13 years he's been a full-time professional bass angler is that it now takes much longer to prepare for a tournament than it did when he first started.

"The competition is much harder now," he explains, "and you have to be prepared if you want to have any chance of winning."

An extension handle is available from OMC Systems Matched Parts and Accessories that fits all late model Johnson and Evinrude tiller control electric positioning motors. It's made of aluminum with a nylon sleeve that locks over the tiller handle of the motor, staying secure without screws or bolts. It adds 18 inches of reach to the handle.

Tough plants survive harsh conditions

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

The opportunity to address the Tombigbee Valley District of The Garden Clubs of Mississippi Inc., on "Tough Plants for Tough Times" recently presented itself.

During a two-week period, this subject was presented by five horticulturists to garden club leaders at their six district meetings.

More than likely, only two groups heard the same talk because of differences in interpretation of the topic, ways of approaching it, and personal experiences with plants.

What are tough times for plants? A tough time could be a lack of water or perhaps too much water.

It could be a gardener with a dislike for anything but natural or organic controls for insects or diseases. It could be too much sun and heat or too little sun or maybe heavy or acid or alkaline soils. It might even be too much foot traffic for a particular lawn grass.

Tough times could be a condition or conditions not ideal for the growth of the plant being considered.

Tough plants are those that not only survive but grow, thrive and perform in spite of tough times. Some people believe such plants exist? One plant that immediately comes to mind is Aspidistra elatior, commonly called cast-iron plant.

With a name like that it has to be tough. The plant reportedly survives in almost total absence of light and water.

Yet, for this plant to thrive, cultural instructions recommend low sunlight, deep, rich, well-tilled and drained soil and protection from freezing winter winds.

The plant is not indestructible, but does survive conditions that prove fatal to most other plants. Cast-iron plant is a tough plant.

Gardeners need to think of tough as a relative term. Some plants thrive and appear tough because they are adapted to their growing conditions.

When moved to a dramatic ally different set of conditions, they may fail to thrive or may even die. Plants which aren't considered tough may die or fail to thrive when exposed to conditions that vary only slightly from the ideal.

What are some tough plants? Look to the roadsides, the fence rows and the woods. The plants you see are those that make it without irrigation, fertilization or spraying for insects and diseases. Look at old abandoned home sites, and you're likely to find tough plants.

All the tough plants aren't the wild ones. There are a lot of relatively tough plants sold as flowering perennials and ornamental shrubs and trees.

Ginkgo has got to be a tough plant. It has survived since prehistoric times and is a living dinosaur. Yet, there are gardeners who claim not to be able to grow a ginkgo tree.

River birch, sweet gum and red maple appear to thrive under a wide range of conditions and are good candidates for tough trees. As we've all learned over the years, dogwood isn't especially tough, yet thrives in the right setting.

Some tough shrubs are our native yaupon holly, kerria, flame buckeye, oakleaf hydrangea, sumac, corky bark euonymus, sumac and possum haw, and these are just a few.

Perennials to consider as tough include those that have a tendency to become weedy—artemisia, garlic chives, canna, liriope, Jerusalem artichoke, and those banned from shipment to certain states where they are considered noxious weeds.

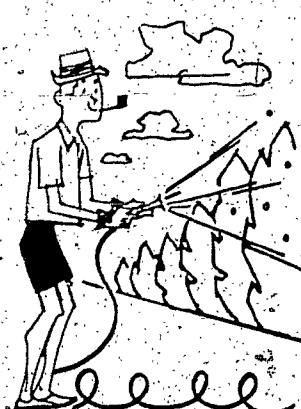

As time available for gardening becomes less and the emphasis to limit fertilizer, water and pesticides increases, we'll hear more about tough plants.

So be it, but somehow, some way and some day I'm going to try growing delphiniums and salpiglossis, even if they aren't tough.

Wilting trees, shrubs don't need more water

Trees love water, but they don't like too much of it.

The floods and excessive rain this year have left many backyard shade trees hurting from "too much of a good thing." Homeowners who think their trees are wilting, now that the sun is finally out, should not apply more water.

Those shade trees aren't suffering from thirst, according to Dr. Frank Killebrew, extension plant pathologist at Mississippi State University.

"Tree roots in flooded or waterlogged soils often die from anoxia, which means they are starved of oxygen," Killebrew said. "Trees that are in obviously wet areas, and along streets and landscapes where drainage is poor, are already showing some damage."

Most trees and shrubs cannot grow for long in waterlogged soil. Some species will quickly decline after only a few days of standing in water. Plant roots use up the oxygen in the soil, and the lack of drainage keeps the oxygen from being replenished.

But that isn't the only danger.

"Certain soil minerals such as iron and manganese become highly soluble (rapidly dissolve in water) and reach toxic levels," Killebrew said. "Under waterlogged conditions, carbon dioxide levels rapidly build up too."

Toxic mineral levels, plus too little oxygen and too much carbon dioxide, can hamper the ability of roots to take up water and nutrients.

The trees and shrubs, despite the availability of water, show symptoms of drought stress. Those symptoms include wilting and discolored leaves, swelling stems, tissue dieback and leaf drop.

Trees and shrubs injured by standing water also become susceptible to diseases. If roots are damaged, the fungus that causes root rot (phytophthora) can easily attack root tissue.

"Dormant woody plants can tolerate flooding or waterlogged soil for several weeks," Killebrew said. "This tolerance is because of the low oxygen requirements of roots in cool soils."

Homeowners who need information on flood damage to trees and shrubs can call the local county Extension Service office or a nursery/garden center specialist in their community.

Mississippi Coast Audubon Society

"I'd rather paint birds than count their feathers," said John Sill, nationally recognized nature artist and author, in a recent telephone conversation.

The outstanding painter of birds will speak July 15 at 7:30 p.m. at the Marine Education Center in Biloxi. The public is invited and there is no admission charge.

Sill, a North Carolina native, graduated with a degree in wildlife biology from North Carolina State, but early successes in art shows encouraged him to follow in his artist father's lead.

His "big break" came after a first place win in Georgia when the Massachusetts Audubon Society selected Sill to illustrate the Bird Identification Calendar.

Since then, he has illustrated the Roger Tory Peterson Coloring Book and the humorous Field Guides to Little Known and Seldom Seen Birds, co-authored with his wife, Kathy.

Sill works primarily in transparent watercolor, with occasional foray into oils and black and white. Included in a one-man show accompanying his talk, Sill will exhibit a painting of an Oldsquaw duck inspired by a winter visit to the Coast. Members of the Mississippi Coast Audubon Society, sponsoring the event, will add their personal Sill paintings to the display.

THE SEA COAST ECHO THURSDAY, JULY 4, 1991

Crab Fest '91

Four days of activities await fairgoers

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Four days of family-oriented fun are on tap at the seventh annual Crab Festival which opens today.

Sponsored by Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church, the event draws thousands in search of home-cooked seafood specialties, local entertainment and arts and crafts.

Although the success of the fair is virtually assured by its reputation, chairman Bill LeBlanc is quick to point out a change in the traditional location will be an obstacle to overcome.

For years, the fair occupied the choice location of the Pete Fountain property, corner Beach Boulevard and Highway 90. It has relocated to the St. Joseph Academy property adjacent to the church this year, because of the uncertainty of the property's status and ownership. The property is targeted as a site for dockside gambling, and with the advanced planning and preparation necessary for the festival, the church committee opted to return to the church grounds.

"We will lose the drive-by traffic; the people who notice the big tents, which we estimate to be between 5-10 percent.

"Although we have signs posted, drivers are not apt to pull off the highway to check it out based on signs alone.

"I feel we will make up that deficit based on word-of-mouth. We have a well-established reputation as an old-fashioned fair, a family 'a-fair,'" said LeBlanc.

LeBlanc estimated high attendance to top the 10,000 mark in fairs past.

The event has been extended to four days this year, instead of the usual 2½. A fireworks display will be featured on the beach in front of the festival on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

According to LeBlanc, 100 craft vendors are expected, up from 68 registered last year.

Other popular favorites returning are Kiddyland, offering rides and activities for small children; a soccer kick, darts, crab races, putt-putt golf, basketball toss, space walk, dunking tank, baseball throw and sling shot/slap happy booth.

For the bargain lover, a garage sale-style "White Elephant" booth will be filled to the brim. Face painting and balloons, or T-shirts, caps and aprons screen printed with the Crab Festival logo will be offered.

The food selection is second to none, with guest cooks preparing any number of crab specialties, Cajun, Oriental and "N'Awlins" style favorites, in addition to fried and boiled seafood, barbecue, hamburgers, hot dogs and desserts.

Homemade cakes and candies earn a booth of their own, while watermelon, snowballs, popcorn and ice cream are also available.

Gene Monti, who has spun cotton candy for fairgoers for more than 20 years, will again man that station.

The grounds open at 11 a.m. today, with the Miss Hospitality Contest scheduled for 7 p.m. A drawdown for $10,000 will begin at 9 p.m.

Other highlights include a 5K run on Saturday afternoon and live entertainment daily, listed on the following schedule:
